PROPOSAL FORWARDED FOR 2 NEW WARSHIPS

Standley Declares Britain's
Naval Plans Justify U. S.
Construction.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—Admiral William H. Standley today made formal mention of Great Britain's plans to build two new battleships in 1937, and asserted this would justify American construction of a similar number.

The acting secretary of the navy made his statement to newsmen in commenting on legislation now being drafted which would authorize two new vessels, if Roosevelt sees need for them. They would cost between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000.

House leaders planned to start consideration tomorrow of the $549,000,000 navy appropriation bill, but it was understood the measure did not make provision for new battleships.

Standley has recommended to Mr. Roosevelt that $10,000,000 already allocated to the Navy Department be used to start work on the two new ships.

The vessels contemplated by the navy would have displacements of 35,000 tons.

Standley said not only has the British government announced its building intentions in an official white paper, but he understood its treasury has been definitely committed to providing funds for laying the keels of two capital ships in 1937.

The new American ships, if authorized, would under present plans replace the Arkansas, a 28,000-ton vessel, and the Texas, a 27,000-ton craft, both of which are approaching the over-age mark.

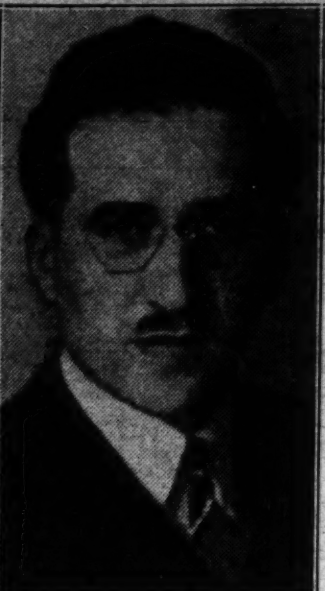

It was understood the house naval appropriations subcommittee has taken testimony from navy officials in regard to battleships of 30,000 tons for which plans have been drafted. Under the London pact, however, a limit of 35,000 tons was fixed.

MUSCOGEE FORWARDS QUOTA OF ENTRY FEE

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—The Muscogee County Roosevelt Club today forwarded a check for $531 to Marion Allen, Georgia campaign manager for President Roosevelt, as this county's contribution to the $10,000 fund being raised to enter Roosevelt in the Georgia preferential primary.

The quota set by the club was $500. At a recent meeting of the state executive committee the entry fee was set at $10,000, and the amount is being subscribed by Roosevelt friends over Georgia.

The meeting will be held at the Standard Club on Ponce de Leon avenue. A dinner at 6:30 o'clock will precede the business session, which will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

KIDNAPER IS GIVEN 25 TO 50-YEAR TERM

Abductor Whose Victim Escaped Sentenced in Pennsylvania.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 29.—(AP)—A penitentiary sentence of 25 to 50 years was imposed today upon Richard D. Taylor, 43, Akron, washing machine salesman who kidnaped 10-year-old Henry T. Koch for $20,000 ransom less than a week ago. Taylor pleaded guilty.

Young Koch, who escaped while his abductor was sending a ransom note, testified privately.

Taylor lured the boy into his car last Thursday, pretending he wanted to take him to the Koch farm to see a colt. The boy broke loose after he was left trussed in the woods near Allentown. His father is a department store executive.

CAIRO RECEIVES BODY OF DEAD RULER, FUAD

Monarch To Be Buried Today;
Son Ready To Leave London.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 29.—(AP)—The body of King Fuad arrived at Abdin palace in Cairo at sunset today from his country palace, where the monarch died yesterday.

The procession, preceded by cavalry units with black draped lances moved through streets packed with people. The coffin was borne on a gun-carriage covered with the Egyptian flag and an embroidered silver design.

Infantry lined the streets and marched in the procession. Mourners carried banners and photographs in black of the late king.

Fuad, who died at the age of 68, will be buried tomorrow. His successor, 16-year-old Crown Prince Farouk, was officially proclaimed king last night.

An election will be held May 2 for a new parliament.

ITALIANS SLIGHTED BY EGYPT'S KING

ROME, April 29.—(AP)—British and Italian competition for Egyptian friendship was belittled in informed circles today responsible for last-minute changes in the sailing plans of 16-year-old Farouk, new king of Egypt.

Farouk, who was in London when advised of the death yesterday of his father, King Fuad, was to have arrived in Venice tomorrow on the Paris Express and sailed for Alexandria on the de Luxe Italian liner Victoria.

Word has now reached an Italian steamship company cancelling the reservation. It was announced that Farouk would sail instead from Marseille aboard the British liner Viceroy of India, escorted by the warship Ajax.

RAILROADS TO REPORT MOTOR LINE INTERESTS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered class one railroads to file by July 1 a statement of their investments in motor carrier lines.

The commission said the information was desired "to afford the basis for compiling a comprehensive and accurate statement of the extent to which steam railway companies are financially interested in the operations of motor vehicle enterprises."

In recent years several railroads have been building up far-flung systems of co-ordinated motor lines, but comprehensive data on these operations have not been compiled.

TALMADGE HITS ROOSEVELT TALK

Limiting of Work Years Distasteful to Governor,
He Says.

Governor Talmadge launched into criticism yesterday of President Roosevelt's Baltimore speech in which the President said that he felt work should be limited to those over 18 years old and under 65. The Governor said he believed that the boy who "does not work before he is 18 will probably be in the chain gang when he is 25."

"When I saw a good, healthy 12-year-old boy plowing, girls chopping cotton, children toting water, I could not help but think of a speech I heard about a week ago saying no one should work until they are 18 years of age and should not work after they reach 65," the Governor asserted.

"Here is the answer:

"If a child is not trained to work before he is 18 years old, he will not work afterward, and the chances are he will be on the chain gang before he is 25."

"I would hate to think again the door of opportunity was closed for a healthy, ambitious man 65 years young and fit to go 20 years longer if he worked."

MASKED BANDITS ROB RAIL AGENCY OF $2,500

CHESTER, Pa., April 29.—(AP)—Two men - bled the Railway Express Agency today of $2,500 consigned to the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia.

The sack of money had been brought 20 minutes earlier from a Chester bank to the agency's office in the Pennsylvania railroad station.

One robber wore a handkerchief for a mask, the other wore dark glasses. They made Roy Tinney, the cashier, lie on the floor, snatched the bag and fled.

HUNGARY UNCOVERS NAZI PUTSCH PLANS

Coup, Set for May 1, Is Believed Thwarted by Series of Raids.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 29.—(AP)—Watchful officers of the Hungarian army remained close to their posts tonight after police, by a series of raids, disclosed apparent plans for a Nazi putsch on May 1.

Eighteen Nazi leaders, including Dr. Zoltan Bossermeny, asserted chief of the national socialist movement in Hungary, were held in jail.

The raids, swiftly simultaneous, resulted in the seizure of 40 uniforms of Hungarian army colonels and generals.

in Dr. Bossermeny's Budapest home. These uniforms, authorities believe, were to be used by Nazis in an attempt to take over command of the troops in the capital.

Newspapers recalled the attempted Nazi putsch in Vienna in 1934 when party followers were organized and pseudo-uniforms prepared. The movement failed when national authorities received information of the plot.

WPA BILL IN SENATE.
WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—A resolution calling upon Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, for a financial accounting of his organization was introduced in the senate today by Senator Barbour, republican, New Jersey.

'DISGRACE' OF ECKENER IS REPORTED LIFTED

BERLIN, April 29.—(AP)—The "disgrace" of Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran Zeppelin expert, has been lifted by the propaganda ministry, private sources revealed tonight.

The airship genius thus apparently has won out over Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in the internationally publicized case which stirred German aviation circles.

The propaganda ministry declined to admit that the ban on the use of his name in German newspapers had been lifted but it likewise never admitted that any measures had been taken against him.

IMPORTANT HIGHWAYS DELAYED BY IMPASSE

Road Board Member Says
North Side Underpass One
Project Held Up.

Judge Max L. McRae, of the State Highway Board, said yesterday that a number of important state highway projects are being held up because of the refusal of the federal government to send highway money into the state. The Federal Bureau of Public Roads has announced that it cannot send the road money into the state because of the de facto setup in the state treasury through which the funds must pass.

Judge McRae said that contracts for several of these projects already had been approved by the Highway Department and were before the federal bureau's southeastern representative, C. N. Seward, at Montgomery, Ala., awaiting orders from Washington. He said that plans for others have been drawn up by the Highway Department but that he expects nothing to be done until those already approved are provided with funds.

Underpass Held Up.
"One of the most important projects is right here in Atlanta," Judge McRae said. "It is the North Side drive underpass. The highway board has received bids and we are ready to start work as soon as the federal government says the money is available. There are others important to Atlanta. The new Atlanta-Buford road would be just about completed if the money was available. The weather is fine now and we could be doing some big jobs if we had the money."

Judge McRae said the same situation was true in connection with the new Atlanta-Marietta highway. "The grading of this road is finished and the paving will start when and if we get the money," he said. $17,000,000 Allocated.

In all approximately $17,000,000 in federal funds is allotted to Georgia but not available.

Litigation to determine the legality of the appointment of J. B. Daniel as treasurer is pending before the courts.

E. M. Williams, of Monroe, well-known highway enthusiast, yesterday made public a letter he has addressed to the Highway Department urging immediate completion of the Stone Mountain scenic highway to Walton, Oconee and Gwinnett counties. Williams said that the people of the three counties have been promised the road for many years, asserting that these promises have included a pledge that the road would be constructed for at the "next letting."

Williams' Letter:
"I have just received a copy of a letter written to Hon. W. E. Wilburn by E. D. Lester, a resident of Atlanta, stating that he is very much interested in seeing the road paved between Snellville, Ga., and the DeKalb county line on state highway No. 10, United States state highway No. 78."

"For the last 20 years this road has been one of the main travel roads in Georgia, being the only state and federal highway passing by Stone Mountain."

"In 1915 when the first federal highway was designated for the purpose of securing information looking toward making appropriations for road building in the country, this road from Washington city was laid out and patrolled by representatives of the Bureau of Public Roads, and since that date surveys, resurveying and construction have been in progress and almost every day since then there has been some delay, unfinished road, impassable mudholes, almost impenetrable dust clouds, and many other embarrassing and inconvenient obstacles hindering travel along this road."

"We have been promised many times that this road would be completed during the present year, and we have been promised a number of times that a contract to finish this road would be in the next letting."

"We are now appealing to the present administration to speed up the work and let a contract to pave the less than seven miles of unpaved road on this route. The people of Walton, Oconee and Gwinnett counties, as well as the people throughout the state will appreciate your careful and honest consideration of this matter."

"Won't you please do something about this at once?"

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 2 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 30, 1936.

CRUCIFYING GEORGIA

The lynching of a negro at Royston the day before he was to be put on trial, and with his conviction assured, was a mockery of law and order that crucified the state in the eyes of the whole country.

When this negro was arrested some weeks ago, charged with attempted assault, he was rescued from the hands of a mob by the courageous action of an aged judge, who arose from a sick bed to successfully plead with the mob that the law be permitted to take its course and the state be saved from a blotch on its good name.

The mob dispersed and later a detail of the state militia brought the negro to Atlanta for safekeeping. Then the law proceeded to move swiftly and surely, the date for the negro's trial being set for less than a month after the commission of the offense with which he was charged, and in view of his positive identification by the victims of his attempted attack there was no doubt of his conviction and legal execution.

The barbarous manner in which the mob took matters in its own hands has the effect of crucifying Georgia. Flouting the efforts of a brave judge who had taken his life in his hands to save the negro from an earlier lynching, and had kept his promise for an early and speedy trial, the mob went about its gruesome business, with apparently no opposition from either local or state officials of the law.

Where the blame lies The Constitution does not know, but it seems strange that this culprit should have been returned for trial unprotected when his safety required the presence of national guardsmen only a few weeks earlier.

It is a sad commentary when a prisoner on the eve of his trial, and with the law moving swiftly and surely, is forcibly taken from jail and brutally and barbarously murdered.

THE COMMON SENSE VIEW

It is to be hoped that Representative Ramspeck will be successful in having included in the $1,500,000,000 relief bill a provision that will insure the completion of the school and sewer projects now under way in the Atlanta area.

The work is being financed through the bond issues voted last year by the city and federal grants totaling several times as much. These grants are part of the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation from which, unless the law is amended, no funds can be paid after June 30th.

Owing to delay in starting the school improvement program it will be impossible to complete this work by June 30, and it is also doubtful if the sewer projects can be finished by this date on account of the unavoidable delays occasioned by the severe weather of the past winter.

The prospect is that when the time comes when no more federal aid will be received from the $4,800,000,000 work-relief program that there will be a large amount of work left to be done on both the schools and the sewers. Since the government is putting up approximately $4.50 to every dollar furnished by the city, the burden on the local government to complete the work would probably be too great to be shouldered, and both the schools and sewer projects would have to be left in an incomplete condition.

Visit to Germany.

"On Easter Monday at 8 o'clock in the evening you go to the Muensterbrau in Munich, take a seat on the right of the door, order a light beer with pretzels, and a cigar and wait a bow tie." These were the precise instructions given me by a German emigrant in Basel who stands in daily contact with the latest happenings in the Reich. "I have told them to look for you," he added. Just remember these words: "Es ist ein verlorener Abend." (It is a lost evening). "I supposed to say this," he asked. "No, somebody will say this to you, and you must answer: 'Aber morgen wird es nicht regnen.' (Tomorrow it will not rain). And, oh, yes, he added, 'Don't forget to ask for the diamond-cutting.'"

I bought myself a bow tie and left for Munich. I had no idea that I was going to be required, which made it easy. We were a party of Swiss tourists eager to see and learn in this trip. I broke away from the party in Munich on the pretext that I knew a lady, which, alas, was not true. I was 8 o'clock. Nobody paid any attention to me in the big hall which buzzed with a low-toned murmur of conversation. I entered the beer hall, dazed by the beer, which was brought to me in a stein as big as a pail. Don't please think a journalist's life is all glory and hallooing.

Environment.

At the table next to me sat a beautiful woman, she had blue eyes and dark eyelashes and wore a gown of beige with gilt buttons, very stylish. I had plenty of time to observe her. She smoked the one cigarette after the other, drank port and carried on what seemed a very amusing conversation. I can't tell you what she said, but I figured that she was at least a colonel or a major or a schaffmeister (centurion). He did not wear the ordinary storm trooper's uniform, and wore a Sam Browne belt. The clock showed a quarter to eleven. I was beginning to be afraid that my friend in Basel had played a trick on me, which would have been no joke. Basel swarms with spies, indicators and luers. I told the waiter to bring me another beer, but not to touch the beer I paid him at the same time. He stated the amount and I put the money on the table. "Danke vielmals," he said, and he left. I froze in my chair. I dared not look up and show too much interest, but I did utter out: "anaber Mein Herr, was ist das?" (My lord, what is the diamond-cutting?). "He is sitting at the next table," said the waiter. The next officer with the lady. Follow him after he has left the table. Turn to the right upon leaving the cafe and walk down the street. He will be waiting for you."

Out Into the Night.

As soon as I gathered my wits together, I followed the officer in the direction of the officer. Should I follow that fellow? I debated the question in my mind with great anxiety. Was it a trap? Suppose, suppose, suppose. I will admit that the perspiration suddenly trickled down my neck. At a quarter past eleven, the night man got up, paid his bill and left. He saluted me and persons in the hall with outstretched arm. I had to decide. No decision I ever made in my life cost me so much. My mind was made. I went. I had gone about 200 yards when a limousine roared up behind me, swerved to the curb. The driver called out: "Get in, get in, get in." I got in. Behind opened the door of the limousine, motioning me to get in. I must have shown some hesitation, for a voice came from the limousine: "Get in, get in, get in." The voice came into the light: "So glad to see you Herr von Paassen (von he said); please step in quickly." I walked in. We were light and I saw the Schupo greet my companion, then outside the city to a country villa, where I met about half a dozen of the men who had been in legal opposition in the Reich. We talked all night. I heard a good deal I did not know. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution)

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

RING THE BELL.

Mrs. J. M. Dawson, of Waco, Texas, the guest speaker each evening this week of the Baptist Young Women's association, told the story of a really outstanding platform woman of America today, tells this fine story. She was recently in a certain American city and asked to speak at the "state bell" about which she had heard so much and about which she had been reading in the newspapers and magazines. They took her around to see the bell—a massive thing, indeed. Her next request was to hear the bell. "Oh, no," they said, "if we were to ring this bell it would crash the city round about us. It has such a vibration that immediate pandemonium would reign in the community." "You mean that this fine bell, costing so much money and so widely heralded throughout the land is too big to be rung?" asked Mrs. Dawson. "Well, I believe it is," said the Texas coo on the back side of a pasture, doing my duty, than to be this big, expensive show bell in the heart of this big city, too big and too important to ring."

From which story we may each and all draw a good lesson. Bells are made to ring, and when they get to be so important and so big that they can't ring without crashing the little things about them, they cease to serve and lose their rightful place in the order of things.

Have you sometimes seen people who felt that they were too big to serve? Too important to join in notes with the little bells about them? Such people must inevitably be very lonely, and surely they must lose much of the joy of living. One remembers the estimate which Jesus gave of Himself:

"I am among you as one who serves."

Ring the bell!

It's That Way!

The fat man and his wife were returning to their seats in the show after an intermission.

"Did I tread on your foot when I went out?" asked the fat man at the end of a row.

"You did," replied the other, grimly, expecting at least an apology.

The fat man turned to his wife.

"All right, Mary," he said, "this is our row."

Everyone is disappointed that the League doesn't show a bolder front. The least it could do is send word through Haile Selassie that it doesn't intend to be intimidated.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

NEW GHOST

White House secret ever to be fully probed, but President Roosevelt appears to have been working with a brand-new confidential adviser lately. The newcomer is supposed to be a master of radio broadcasting technique, schooled in radio news and religious commentary. To him, the closest of insiders attribute a slightly different Rooseveltian style-tone exhibited in the Baltimore and New York speeches.

The world outside will recognize the new man only as Dr. Stanley High, founder of this week's new "Good Neighbor League." He has had a desk in democratic national committee headquarters here, apparently to help in the coming campaign along the lines for which his experience has best fitted him, and he has seldom been seen around the White House.

But in addition, on the side, he is supposed to have contributed editorial assistance in preparation of the last two speech broadcasts. The assistance in material was the Baltimore and New York economic wage-hour argument in New York apparently did not come from him, but he helped on the delivery style.

NOTE—Who's who lists Stanley Hoffund High as an editor, 41 years old, and recites his war aviation record, his connections with the Methodist mission to China (1919) his career as European correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, current events broadcaster for the National Broadcasting Company and finally as religious broadcasting director for NBC. In the radio trade, his position was regarded as that of peacekeeper among various religious factions. His broadcasts were not what the trade would call "commercial," his sponsors being church organizations. Those who recall his radio style say it was rapid fire and scholarly.

DISSATISFACTION

Mr. Roosevelt's excellent political advisers (the nominal ones) may be giving Dr. High more credit than he deserves, but they are unmistakably nettled about his position. Frankly, they believe his connection with the campaign in both his official and unofficial capacities is a mistake, for several technical reasons.

The reaction to the Baltimore speech was not what the democratic publicity experts would call popular. The hush in congress afterward was devastating.

There was nothing particularly wrong about the economics used by the President in New York, but economics is not an exact science. It is an argument. The mistake was that the President got into it at all. At least this is the way the experienced politicians at the top of the democratic campaign feel about it. Their influence may bring a shift in the inside line-up, even before this reaches your eye.

PLANNING

Mr. Roosevelt's politics would like to make him refrain from saying anything, even such mild things as he said in New York. They are nearly all convinced now that the tax program was an additional error committed in haste. The corporate earnings distribution scheme will just not work out satisfactorily the way it was conceived by the treasury or even in the milder form of the present house bill.

Consequently, the impression is widespread on the inside that every time Mr. Roosevelt has spoken lately he has failed to help himself. The boys believe that if he had not said anything, the current odds on his election would be more than six to five.

It would not be surprising if you hear shortly that the June campaign trip into the west is being canceled or curtailed. He was scheduled to go into Kentucky, Indiana, Arkansas and Texas, but you will not see that schedule carried out fully at any rate.

NOTE—An inkling of a change was conveyed to Governor McNutt on his White House visit. The President told McNutt the June 6 date at Vincennes might have to be postponed until the June 4 or "early in July." Congress will furnish the reason.

EXPENSE

Father Coughlin's 26 political broadcasts last year cost him $210,000, according to the top radio magazine, Broadcasting. The costs included wires, transmission, etc. The Non-Political Technical Journal says Father Coughlin has apparently no intention of repeating his broadcasts until next October, and therefore assumes he will not participate in the presidential campaign until the last moment. His broadcasting costs are apparently becoming onerous.

PROFIT

Secretary Morgenthau has announced that proof coins of the one-cent denomination will be sold by his treasury for 15 cents, plus the face value of one cent, plus 8 cents postage. Total, 24 cents, profit 43 cents, or 2,300 per cent.

Apparently Mr. Morgenthau did not read Mr. Roosevelt's new price-theory or accept the theory of his own tax bill against excess profits, or fear the Federal Trade Commission.

THE WOLF CANNOT EAT IN PEACE UNLESS HE

Shares His Kill With the Pack

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When men play any kind of gambling game, the only one willing to quit is the winner. The others feel that they must continue to play until they get even.

That is true of all antagonists, whether individuals or nations, and therein lies the explanation of much of the world's woes.

When pioneers in a heathen land have taken the territory they desire and driven the natives into the wilderness, they are willing to quit fighting and live in peace. But the natives, thirsting for revenge, attack again and again until the last invader is "massacred."

Then they in turn are willing to consider the business finished; but the home land of the settlers hears of the massacre and sends shiploads of soldiers to avenge it, and thus the struggle continues until the last native surrenders or dies.

There is never an end of warfare, but only a rest between battles while the wronged prepare to retaliate.

And while human nature remains as it is now, there are but two methods of ending the strife: The loser must be destroyed or so weakened that he never again can become a menace, or the winner must be so just and generous as to leave no desire for vengeance. The loser would be willing to quit if the winner would give back his money.

Rome destroyed Carthage, as Mussolini threatens to annihilate the soldiers of Ethiopia, and thus ended for all time a menace that had threatened her for years.

That method may work in dealing with savages, but great nations can no longer destroy one another. The victor suffers with the vanquished, and to ruin an enemy is to bankrupt a customer.

All the world now realizes that the foolish and unjust peace-terms imposed on Germany made other peace-terms inevitable. A helpless nation will submit to wrongs; but it will nurse its grievance and take its just due by force when it becomes strong again.

Those who plead for peace are the winners. They can have it, forever, if they will consider and satisfy the just grievances of the losers—but they can have it on no other terms.

THE SCHOLAR'S HEALTH.

A number of merchants on a sea voyage were each boasting of the value of his own cargoes on board the ship. Noticing a poorly dressed elderly man who was not participating in their conversation, one of them asked him the value of his goods. The old man, who happened to be a learned scholar, replied:

"My goods are invaluable," but would say no more.

Knowing that he had no stores or merchandise on the ship, and noticing his poor clothes, they ridiculed him, but he smiled to himself and said nothing.

A short time thereafter, the ship was attacked by pirates, who not only took the cargo, but also the clothes of the merchants, leaving the merchants to fend for themselves.

The old scholar, though, was not molested as he had no money or goods, and his clothes were too poor to attract the pirates' attention.

In due time their ship arrived at a port and the scholar who was known there by reputation, was engaged to deliver a series of lectures. Because of his fame as a lecturer, his audiences were large and appreciative, many people coming from far and near to hear him.

Not only was he remunerated generously for his lectures but he was induced to remain in that city to deliver a series of lectures on head of their college.

His former companions on board the ill-fated ship did not fare so well. Having had all their property and clothes stolen by the pirates and not being trained in any trade or profession, they were unable to find employment and their position was anything but a happy one.

When news of their plight reached the elderly scholar, he loaned them money for new clothes and through his influence he helped them all obtain employment.

Then said one of those who had previously scoffed at him, "You were indeed right when you said your goods were invaluable. If a man has knowledge he has everything. If he has no knowledge, he has nothing."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Soft Spot.

My baby, a year old, has the fontanel on top of her head not closed yet. (Mrs. G. E.)

Answer—The fontanel on top of the head normally becomes hard (filled in with bone) about the eighteenth month. The spot remains soft longer than that, the case is likely to be rickets. Daily exposure of naked skin to sunshine or at least skylight; babies require no more clothes and no more artificial heat than adults. Get baby out for nap in the sunshine, for several hours of it, daily. Just see that the eyes are shaded from direct glare and that the baby is protected from insects, cats, dogs and selfish people who want to kiss and fondle and perhaps infect the defenseless infant.

George maintained his affection for her even after he married Caroline of Brunswick for state convenience, but after his death his royal heirs ignored her.

1,887 Students Remain in School Through NYA Activities in Fulton

Direct cash benefits from the National Youth Administration have made it possible for 1,416 high school and 471 college students living in Fulton county to remain in school during the year 1935-36, a report prepared by H. B. Felt, state youth director, revealed yesterday. A number of Fulton county youths not in school, also have received aid through employment on NYA work projects.

NYA checks amounting to about $60,000 are distributed each month to 1,536 high school students and 2,814 college students between the ages of 16 and 25 in 644 high schools and 63 colleges of Georgia.

In addition to the student aid benefits more than 6,000 unemployed young people who are not in school and are members of families certified for the work program are working on NYA projects, receiving one-third the security wage for 42 hours of work per month, with a monthly payroll of $30.00.

High school students aided are selected on the basis of need by the school officials. Each student may receive up to $8 a month to be used for lunches, transportation, books, fees or other incidental expenses of school which he would be unable to meet otherwise.

Each of the 53 colleges in the state, 40 white and 13 colored, has a quota of funds representing nine monthly allotments of $15 each for 12 per cent of the total student enrollment.

The state has been divided into eight work districts, with district supervisors stationed in WPA offices in the following cities: Athens, Augusta, Savannah, Marietta, Atlanta, Columbus, Macon and Albany. Fulton county is in District No. 5, with headquarters at Atlanta with Mrs. Mary Rogers as NYA district supervisor.

Mrs. Hammond attended the Mary Baldwin Seminary at Staunton, Va., and was married to Mr. Hammond in 1888. Following her marriage she lived for a time in Atlanta, Americus and Savannah, returning to this city in 1916.

Surviving are three sons, William P. Charles S. and Edward C. Hammond; a brother, James T. Moreland, of Mobile, and a granddaughter, Miss Betty Moreland Hammond.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son with Dr. Richard Orme Flinn officiating.

Burial will be in Oak Grove cemetery at Americus.

MERCHANTS URGE ASSESSMENT CUT

Atlanta Group Asks Taxation Relief From Fulton Board of Assessors.

Requests for reduction in county tax assessments on merchandise, stocks and fixtures were laid before the Fulton board of tax assessors yesterday by a delegation of prominent Atlanta businessmen representing the Atlanta Retail Merchants Association.

The group, headed by Ivan Allen, asked the tax officials to assess merchandise, stocks and fixtures and similar properties at 10 per cent less than the amount of assessment by the city of Atlanta.

Should the request be granted, it would mean a loss of approximately $50,000 per year to Fulton county.

Homer Gullatt, Price Gilbert and Reese Perry, tax assessors, said they have taken the proposal under consideration.

Allen and the association's representatives pointed out that the taxes of Fulton county have materially increased since 1920, while those for the remainder of the state have decreased.

Figures compiled by the association gave the 1920 total taxes for Fulton county at $27,756,500 and for the remainder of the state at $37,916,222.

In 1936 the state, except for Fulton, was taxed $25,394,465 while Fulton alone was taxed $34,722,310, they said.

ESCAPER IS SOUGHT FOR SAFE ROBBERY

John H. McNabb Named by Police as Accomplice of Captured Man.

The alleged accomplice of a suspect when police surprised the pair attempting to loot a safe in an office of the Orange Crush Bottling Company at 152 Ellis street, N. E., was named by police yesterday as John H. McNabb.

Detectives said McNabb escaped from the DeKalb county jail following his arrest in 1931 on a safe-cracking job, and was later arrested in Knoxville, where he was caught allegedly attempting to rob a safe in the courthouse.

As search for McNabb progressed, police questioned Tony Angelo, who was captured on the roof of the bottling plant when police, called by the night watchman, surrounded the building. Several shots were fired.

The man said to be McNabb escaped by leaping from an aw roof in the rear, eluding pursuers by dodging among several pieces of road machinery parked on an adjoining lot.

Police also revealed that tools found near the opened safe in the bottling company were identified as those stolen last Thursday night from a garage at 301 Whitehall street.

N. Y. REPUBLICANS KILL SECURITY BILL
Solons Defeat Governor Lehman's Plan To Get Federal Aid.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—(AP)—The republican majority definitely killed the Lehman social security program in the assembly today.

The final vote was 73 to 71 to keep the bill locked in committee.

The eight-point program sponsored by Governor Herbert H. Lehman would require expenditure of about $4,000,000 by New York state this year to assure federal contributions of about $20,000,000.

The plan would have reduced eligible age for pensions from 70 to 65 years, extended help to dependent children, mothers, child welfare agencies, the crippled, the blind, and youths in need of vocational training.

If the plan had prevailed, New York would have joined 28 other states in benefits of the federal social security law, enacted under New Deal sponsorship in Washington.

$50,000 GOAL REACHED IN JEWISH FUND DRIVE

Workers To Continue Campaign for Nonlocal Charities; Dinner Planned.

The Atlanta Jewish welfare fund campaign has passed its $50,000 goal, according to reports made by workers in the drive at a final meeting yesterday afternoon.

Solicitors in the campaign will continue their calls, however, during the next few days in an effort to raise several thousand dollars more to take care of any possible shrinkage in the fund and those Atlantians who have not been solicited may still send in their contributions to the headquarters of the campaign in the Hurt building.

A. J. Weinberg, vice chairman of the drive, presided at the meeting in the absence of Harold Hirsch, chairman, who was out of the city. Weinberg praised the workers for their loyalty and splendid work and asked them to continue their calls until every one of their prospects had been seen. Leaders in the campaign stated that it was the first time in 15 years that the Atlanta Jewish community had responded so wholeheartedly and generously to an appeal for nonlocal Jewish charities. Scores of contributions were received from Atlantians of all faiths, and officers again expressed their appreciation for this demonstration of good will.

A letter from Hirsch was read at the meeting thanking the workers and officers for their untiring efforts and the city generally for its liberal response. The budget committee of the campaign will continue its study of the needs of the various charitable agencies who will benefit from the fund, so that a prompt allocation of the money may be made, and it is planned to make the Atlanta Jewish welfare fund a permanent project here.

In addition to Hirsch and Weinberg other officers who headed the drive in which more than 200 participated are Simon S. Selig, Mrs. Harry M. Gershon, Mrs. Sam E. Levy and I. J. Paradise, vice chairmen; David H. Straus, treasurer; Sol Golden, secretary, and Sam Geffen, assistant secretary. Plans were made at the meeting for a victory dinner within the near future.

TAX INSPECTION SHOWS GAIN IN COLLECTIONS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said tonight his inspection army of "white collar" workers, assigned to conduct miscellaneous tax investigations, returned to date $1.77 for every $1 expended.

Reporting on the plan, first undertaken as an experiment, he said collections far exceed the cost of the project.

He reported the 1,800 workers, taken off relief rolls last August, had determined additional assessments of $10,251,615 due from delinquent tax payers of which $2,430,527 had actually been collected. The total expense incident to carrying on the

The Secret of a Comfortable Home

Fall-Winter-Spring-Summer

MONCRIEF Air CONDITIONING

There is no consciousness of severe weather—winter, spring, summer or fall—by the owners of Moncrief Air-Conditioning Systems. Like Aladdin, they have found the "Open Sesame" to comfort, convenience and the ease of inviting perpetual June into their homes. You, too, can find this comfort and, like the others, the secret of knowing how to summon health into the home by constantly maintained air circulation, humidity and cleanliness.

The Moncrief Air-Conditioning system automatically heats, filters, moistens and circulates the air to all parts of the house during the winter. In summer you enjoy clean, refreshing, invigorating air at all times. This modern system protects the health as well as the comfort of your family by filtering from the air dust, dirt, pollen and bacteria. Rugs, draperies and furnishings are free of the usual dust accumulation, materially reducing cleaning and redecorating costs.

Investigate the modern system today. One of our engineers will gladly explain just how economically it can be installed and give you full information about Moncrief's 26-month-payment plan.

Moncrief also installs Furnace, Weather-Stripping, Rock Wool, Insulation, Ventilating and Humidification Systems on the same liberal time payment plan.

CONGRESS HOLDS FATE OF SEWER COMPLETION

Work After June 30 Deadline Hinges on Ramspeck Efforts.

As hope for completion of the gigantic $6,000,000 sewer modernization program for metropolitan Atlanta were pinned yesterday on the success of Congressman Robert Ramspeck, of the fifth Georgia district, to have that and the school improvement program included in new federal undertakings, it was announced that federal agencies will have expended or contracted to expend more than $4,000,000 on the sewers by June 30.

Ramspeck Tuesday asked that the Atlanta and fifth district projects be designated in the $1,500,000,000 relief bill now pending in congress, and yesterday expressed confidence that some provision will be made to complete the undertakings already started.

At the same time, Robert L. MacDougall, assistant WPA administrator for Georgia, pointed out that trunk lines on which the government is now working double shifts will be completed on Peachtree projects two and three, on Sugar creek, Intrenchment creek and South river, and that it will be pushed as far as possible on the Utoy creek line. These are all the major trunk lines which WPA was assigned.

More than $800,000 in federal funds already has been expended on the trunk line work, MacDougall said, and by June 30 more than $1,500,000 will have been spent on the lines.

In addition, the Clayton, South river and Utoy creek disposal plants are to be erected by the municipality under contract and in co-operation with WPA, and they will total more than $2,500,000. Although the contract work will not be finished by June 30, the deadline will not affect that class of construction, it was pointed out.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia WPA administrator, and Mayor Key recently agreed in a conference that every facility of the agency in Georgia will be utilized in pushing the program.

Approval of the Ramspeck measure would expedite start of an intensive program of school improvement, which was delayed because of a board of education row over retention of architects.

MRS. HEWITT TO FACE NEW JERSEY CHARGES
TRENTON, N. J., April 29.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman refused today to surrender Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt to California authorities to face charges in alleged sterilization of her daughter, Ann.

Denial of extradition was not final, however. The Governor explained in a letter to Governor Frank F. Merriam, of California, that she was in custody at a Jersey City hospital and faced a New Jersey charge of attempting suicide.

Governor Hoffman advised California authorities to file detainers to assure Mrs. Hewitt's detention after disposition of the suicide attempt case.

Negotiations for Lease Now
Under Way, Treasury
Officials Reveal.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P)—While no lease has yet been signed by the owner or officials of the Treasury Department, it was authoritatively learned here today that the old Austell building, now known as the 10 Forsyth Street building, Atlanta, will shortly be leased by the government to house a dozen or more federal agencies now scattered throughout the capital of Georgia.

Negotiations are still being carried on with owners of the building for a long-term lease. It was said by the procurement division of the Treasury Department, but to date no formal contract has been entered into for lease of the premises.

The building at 10 Forsyth street has housed offices of the accounting, disbursement and procurement divisions of the Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve Bank. One official said, and when a lease has been signed between the owner and the government, it is proposed to move into the building offices of the quartermaster corps of the War Department, motor bus division of the U. S. C. O., Labor Department employment service, Securities Exchange Commission, Social Security Board, National Labor Relations Board, Federal Power Commission, state offices of the HOLC, and possibly other federal agencies now scattered throughout the city.

Officials of the Treasury Department explained that it "is not surprising" a lease has not yet been signed because there were considerable negotiations to be carried on.

LONDON IS LEADER IN MASSACHUSETTS

Unnumbered Republicans
Vote for Roosevelt in Primary.

BOSTON, April 29.—(P)—Complete returns from a primary that drew a presidential preference from but a small percentage of Massachusetts voters today gave Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, a heavy endorsement in the republican "write in" balloting.

A similarly small percentage of democrats declared their preference for President Roosevelt.

No complete tabulation of the Roosevelt vote was available.

The President faced no serious opposition in the decision in the primary. Roosevelt pledged candidates for delegates to the democratic national convention were elected in all but one district—the tenth.

The republican presidential preference vote for the entire state gave: Borah, 4,542; Hoover, 7,214; Knox, 1,810; Landon, 78,710; and Vandenberg, 2,117.

President Roosevelt was voted for by republicans in several districts. Thirty-three candidates for delegates to the republican national convention were chosen. All were unpledged. Democrats elected 38 national convention delegates, 38 being definitely pledged to Roosevelt and the other two unpledged but believed Roosevelt-minded.

STATE TO DROP CASE IN SLAYING OF LOEB

JOLIET, Ill., April 29.—(P)—State's Attorney William R. McCabe announced tonight he would not prosecute James Day for the razor slaying of Richard (Dickie) Loeb in Stateville penitentiary January 28.

The prosecutor said that when the 22-year-old convict is arraigned in circuit court next Wednesday on a charge of murder he would ask that the case be stricken from the docket for lack of evidence.

McCabe explained he would request leave to reinstate the case if evidence developed.

A murder indictment was voted against Day by the Will county grand jury after authorities stated he had confessed killing Loeb in a fight in the prison shower room. Loeb was convicted with Nathan Leopold Jr. for the "thrill slaying" of Bobby Franks in Chicago 12 years ago.

Second Case in 24 Hours For Lottery Is Booked

Almost 24 hours after he was arrested on charges of several bookings, a man who identified himself as J. L. Sanders, 39, of Boulevard, N. E., address, was taken into custody on a similar charge by the same officers at about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

This time, however, there was no charge as Patrolman C. M. Cloud and H. G. Tuggle, of DeKalb county police, recognized him in his car at Springdale and Fairview roads.

As in the previous arrest, which occurred on Ponce de Leon avenue after Sanders allegedly drove 80 miles an hour, lottery tickets were found in the car and Sanders had more than $200 in cash in his possession.

He told police that only $7 of the money represented the day's lottery pickup, and that the remainder were his personal funds.

KNOX SAID GAINING IN NEW ENGLAND

Victory in New Hampshire
Leads to Growth in Popular Sentiment.

NEW YORK, April 29.—One aftermath of Colonel Frank Knox's primary victory in New Hampshire last month has been a growth in popular sentiment for him throughout the New England states, the American Institute of Public Opinion revealed here today.

The Chicago publisher has been running behind Governor Landon and other widely-known republicans in the public sentiment tests of the institute, but he will have delegates from several states, including Illinois, due the first ballot at the Cleveland convention.

In a poll reported by the institute April 5, Knox received 5 per cent of the total republican vote across the country and was 1 point higher in New England. Today, the institute points out, Knox has 8 per cent of the vote in New England.

State gains were recorded for him, in this area, in Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut. He dropped in Vermont and held his ground in Massachusetts.

Next Sunday The Atlanta Constitution will report the national standings of the six leading republican candidates, as indicated in the current poll of the Institute of Public Opinion. The Constitution is one of more than 70 newspapers which co-operates with the institute in making these polls possible.

M'MULLEN'S CASE IS RESTED BY U. S.

Army Officer's Defense Expected To Be Presented Today.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P)—The government rested its case today against Colonel Joseph I. McMullen, veteran officer in the judge advocate general's office, on trial in the District of Columbia supreme court on charges of accepting compensation from a private firm while on active army duty.

William Leahy, defense counsel, said he expected to present all of his evidence tomorrow. Not more than four or five defense witnesses will be called, he said.

Lindley C. Moton, Birmingham, Ala., director of the Cuban-American Manganese Corporation, testified his firm paid McMullen $1,000 as direct compensation for his aid in defeating a proposed tax on imports of manganese ore, which was under consideration by the senate finance committee in April, 1932. In addition, McMullen received $500 for services performed in May and June, 1932, he said.

Leahy contended, in his opening statement, that the $1,000 was intended as a retainer for "future services," and not as a payment for McMullen's work against the tax proposal.

INJUNCTION LIFTS U. S. LOTTERY BAN

Fraud Order by Farley Is Temporarily Restrained
by U. S. Court.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(P)—An injunction, temporarily restraining Postmaster Albert Goldman from having the mails to the Golden States Advertising Corporation under a fraud order issued by Postmaster General James A. Farley, was signed today by federal Judge John C. Knox.

Farley issued the fraud order on the grounds that contests conducted by the concern are really lotteries and hence violate the postal laws. Alfred E. Smith Jr. is vice president and general counsel for the concern.

Judge Knox's order directs Postmaster Goldman to show cause on May 5 why the injunction should not remain in effect until the outcome of pending litigation. In a proviso he wrote the postmaster may make application to have the order vacated.

Attorneys for the Golden States contended their plan of business was submitted to the postoffice department last winter and was approved. Thus assured, the complaint said, the concern went to considerable expense to carry on.

TRIO OF G. O. P. TRUST AGAINST PARTY TARIFF

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P)—Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, said tonight three members of a republican national committee's new professional advisors staff had condemned the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill in 1930.

He planned to observe that the republican national committee has come at last to realize the destructive blow which was struck against American commerce and trade by the indefensible Smoot-Hawley tariff bill.

Niles W. Carpenter, F. A. Bradford and Rufus S. Tucker were the members referred to.

Harrison said that Professor Asher Hobson, another member of the republican staff, "was the man who wrote the report on which the Canadian reciprocal tariff agreement was based, in so far as it applied to dairy products."

HOUSE CLEANING URGED FOR U. S. AIR BUREAU

Vidal Retorts Plans Travel
Six Times as Safe as in 1930.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P)—Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, today asserted the Bureau of Air Commerce "needs a house cleaning," adding heads of the organization "don't know what it's all about."

He made his statement after Eugene L. Vidal, director, and Rex Martin, assistant director, had testified on the operation of the bureau before the senate air safety committee, of which Clark is a member.

Clark seconded a recommendation by Vidal that an impartial accident board be set up to investigate aviation disasters.

Vidal asserted "it is proving embarrassing to have our own personnel in a position where they must judge our own inspection and airways services along with air line operations."

He told the committee "statistics show air line travel is now six times as safe as in 1930." He said the bureau's aids to aviation were "obscure" in some places but that in no accident have these aids been "contributory causes."

"Our bureau," he added "is more efficient than it was years ago but even now lacks the discipline, say, of an air line organization because of the very nature of established government procedure."

Next Sunday The Atlanta Constitution will report the national standings of the six leading republican candidates, as indicated in the current poll of the Institute of Public Opinion. The Constitution is one of more than 70 newspapers which co-operates with the institute in making these polls possible.

HOUSE REJECTS CALL FOR JOHNSON REPORT

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P)—Over republican opposition, the house today rejected a resolution calling upon President Roosevelt to submit to congress a report made by Hugh L. Johnson upon completion of his work as WPA administrator for New York city.

The roll call vote was announced by Speaker Byrnes as 243 in favor of tabling the resolution and 98 against tabling.

The report made by Johnson, former NRA chief, was highly critical of much of the New Deal works program.

"Dodge Scores a Bull's-Eye With Me"

Says MAJOR M. E. TRULL
Noted Marksmen

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P)—Major M. E. Trull, noted marksmen, today asserted the Dodge car "scores a bull's-eye with me."

He made his statement after Eugene L. Vidal, director, and Rex Martin, assistant director, had testified on the operation of the bureau before the senate air safety committee, of which Clark is a member.

Clark seconded a recommendation by Vidal that an impartial accident board be set up to investigate aviation disasters.

Vidal asserted "it is proving embarrassing to have our own personnel in a position where they must judge our own inspection and airways services along with air line operations."

He told the committee "statistics show air line travel is now six times as safe as in 1930." He said the bureau's aids to aviation were "obscure" in some places but that in no accident have these aids been "contributory causes."

"Our bureau," he added "is more efficient than it was years ago but even now lacks the discipline, say, of an air line organization because of the very nature of established government procedure."

Next Sunday The Atlanta Constitution will report the national standings of the six leading republican candidates, as indicated in the current poll of the Institute of Public Opinion. The Constitution is one of more than 70 newspapers which co-operates with the institute in making these polls possible.

BULLOCH PICTURES ARE TO BE PLACED

Statesboro Courthouse and Schools To Get Likeness of Namesake.

STATESBORO, Ga., April 29.—A picture of Archibald Bulloch, for whom Bulloch county was named, former governor of Georgia, and a Georgia ancestor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is to be placed in every room in the county courthouse here and in the schoolrooms in the county, it is announced here by Mrs. Julian C. Lane, president of the Eleanor Roosevelt Woman's Club, of Bulloch county. Many pictures of President Roosevelt are being placed in the county. The pictures were contributed by Clark Howell, editor and president of The Atlanta Constitution, and will be presented to the public buildings by the Eleanor Roosevelt Club, which will also place a life-sized portrait of Bulloch in the courtroom of the courthouse, which will be unveiled at public exercises soon.

Bulloch was an active exponent of democracy, according to Mrs. Lane, when Georgia, as one of the original 13 states, joined the other 12 colonies in the fight for independence. At the provincial congress assembled in Savannah, January 2, 1776, he was elected as president and commander-in-chief of Georgia; and a delegate to the Continental congress. As chief executive of the state he was unable to attend the national congress, and it was for this reason his name is not among the signers of the Declaration of Independence. However, when the news of the signing of the independence pact on July 4, 1776, reached Savannah, he read the document to a large audience assembled there, and is said to have been the first person in Georgia to read the Declaration of Independence.

Plans for the unveiling of the courthouse portrait will be announced later, Mrs. Lane states.

Pale Blue Color Scheme Prevails In Caroline Latimer's Nursery

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Caroline Latimer is removed with her lovely little-haired mother from St. Joseph's infirmary she will occupy a pale blue nursery in her Peachtree road home. "Baby" is hand-painted upon the white shades topping the pale blue lamps, and cunning little white rabbits, dogs, cats and Dutch girls scamper across the blue chest of drawers, chairs and bureau. A pale blue velvet rug covers the floor and white Venetian blinds will protect little Caroline's eyes from the glare. The ruffles on the white voile curtains are edged with blue voile, and a pale pink silk coverlid on the blue bed matches the pillows.

Little Caroline is the namesake of Mrs. W. J. Weinman, her maternal grandmother, and Sally Forth understands that she may answer to the name, "Carey," an abbreviation of Caroline. Her mother is the former Frances Weinman, one of the most popular and admired debutantes of two years ago. On her paternal side "Carey" is the first grandchild of Mrs. W. Carroll Latimer who is equally as proud of the baby as are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Weinman, of Cartersville, the maternal grandparents. By right of inheritance "Carey" is a beautiful baby, and some say she resembles her mother. Others declare she is the image of W. Carroll Latimer, her handsome father.

IF DAME RUMOR is correct in her latest supposition, one of the most prominent former members of the younger social contingent is wearing a very lovely ring, which is indicative of an approaching walk down the "old church aisle." She is a very stunning brunette, and she made her debut two years ago. Although Sally has received no definite information as yet, if the wedding goes off according to Hoyle, it is said that her new name will begin with a very artistic S.

FRIENDS over the state will be cordially interested in the news that Mrs. Dakin Ferris, formerly Antoinette Smith, of Griffin, has returned to that city for residence, after having lived the past ten years in Garden City, Long Island. Mrs. Ferris and her two handsome young sons, Dakin Jr. and Henry Atwater, are residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, in Griffin. Antoinette has perhaps as many friends in Atlanta as she has in Griffin, for she was graduated from Washington Seminary and frequently returned here to see her schoolmates, each visit made to her family in Griffin including days spent here with her contemporaries. On ly recently she has returned to Griffin after a visit with Julia Black Wellborn in Brookwood Hills. During the 10 years that Antoinette and her husband, the late Dakin Ferris, brilliant young architect, lived in Garden City their home was a rendezvous for the younger smart set and Antoinette was noted for her charm and graciousness. Georgians feel that Long Island's loss is decidedly their gain and they are giving Antoinette and her children a most cordial welcome back to this state, where her forebears have been prominent for generations.

Crystal candelabra containing lighted white tapers and crystal compotes completed the effective arrangements.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

KEEP YOUR FINE FIGURE.

Maybe you were not cut out to be slender. If you have a larger-than-average frame, you may weigh 160 pounds or more, and have a magnificent figure. A generous assortment of curves seem to be in keeping with a big frame, and you look best with weight above normal.

As a general rule, high vitality and amazing endurance go with a large structure. Your figure may need alterations, but don't accept any measure that will lessen that abundant vitality. For you the thousand-calorie menu, which is the average reducing diet, is far inadequate and apt to take its toll in health and looks.

Your large frame gives you a high normal calorie allowance, therefore your reducing calories will be proportionately high. For example, when 2,500 calories a day are the normal amount, your reducing calories can be as high as 1,700. To arrive at the number of calories allowed in a reducing diet, multiply the weight that is normal for your build by 15. Use two-thirds of this total as your daily diet while reducing. This scientific calorie reduction will protect your health and safeguard your appearance.

Aside from high vitality, another enviable characteristic of the large woman is a superb posture, which eliminates such minor figure worries as a dowager's cushion or a double chin. However, this type has its figure problems, and you may be concerned over excess flesh on the back of the upper arm; tend to develop breadth through the middle and hips. All figures seem to be in need of hip exercises.

To be flattering, weight must be properly distributed and there must be good muscle tone. Flabbiness is unbecoming to any figure, large or small. Exercise is the measure needed to tone the muscles and redistribute the weight, and it should be a regular part of your program.

The most serviceable exercises use the large muscles of the body. The stretching exercises are invaluable for the prevention or correction of a thickened waistline, and the abdominal and hip exercises give your figure contour control. All outdoor activities are beneficial and will help you to keep your vitality at a high level.

Extreme slimness should never be your goal, as it takes curved contours to flatter a large frame. Of course, if you are considerably overweight, you should get rid of the excess flesh, but aim at normal weight for your build rather than fashionable slenderness. Keep fit through health-giving exercise and sensible diet, and you can be proud of your figure.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care of The Constitution.

Reader, do you know what is the costliest of all luxuries, one that is coveted by rich and poor alike, a luxury without which no human being is happy, a luxury that anyone will pledge his or her all to possess, a luxury that, once bargained for, becomes an investment in the future? Love and it can be bought and paid for only on the installment plan.

Do you know what it will cost you? In any case, all you have to spare, all your surplus, and if you purchase a love of poor quality then you must spend the rest of your days struggling to meet the increasingly large payments as they fall due. For failure to meet them at the proper time and in the proper amount means that a compromise investment has been made and your investment will be a total loss.

The first "down payment" is your own love. The first installment is the partial relinquishment of your independence. The second is the expression of a tolerant attitude toward views and habits of life that may be diametrically opposed to your own. The third is heartache, for not even love can make the heart immune to suffering. Rather, it increases the potentiality for pain, as when a lover is hurt. On and on, to the end of time, one must pay and pay for this costliest of all luxuries.

Oh! Some people imagine that they can bargain for another's love, pay for it outright. They imagine they can then lock it up in the safety deposit vault of the heart, take it out occasionally, admire it, gloat over it and put it away again until such time as they shall have need of it. But no, they are mistaken. Once they go to touch their treasure and it's gone like a will-o'-the-wisp—vanished. For love can be kept safe only when it is kept in circulation and kept in circulation only when it is being constantly revalued and exchanged.

What is another's love costing you, reader? Far more than you expect to pay. There have been times when the installments were so large that you wished yourself free of the obligation and other times when you delighted in the debt. Sometimes you have argued with yourself that you were due a discount and at other times you have hesitated on paying more than was demanded of you. Sometimes another's love has cost you the surrender of cherished plans, a carefully nursed ambition, a spiritual ideal, a high hope for the future. By and by, when your love is costing you the limit of what you are able to pay and so it will be to the end.

Is love worth the price you are paying for it? The answer depends upon two points: the quality of the love you have bargained for and the dividends your investment yields. Love, unlike other luxuries, is costliest when its quality is poorest and least costly when its quality is best; for love shows up character, it doesn't change it. The power of affection cannot punish a person further than his character permits him to go. You doubt it? Then bargain for the love of a selfish person who considers his pleasure exclusively and find out how costly the purchase is. The love of a moody person whose moods must be met with understanding and indulgence, the love of an emotionally unstable person can be steered only by another's self-control, the love of a conscienceless person who does not know right from wrong—their love is costly. Paradoxically, that love for which you pay most yields the wisest dividends.

Some bargain wisely and well. For them there can be but one answer to the question: "Is love worth all its costs?" Yes, love is worth all its costs. There is pleasure in paying for it and the dividends are regular and large, mental stimulation, heart satisfaction, security, sense of fulfillment, peace and contentment—which is riches. These may be the dividends of another's love.

TILLER STRESSES NEED OF U. S. AID

Fulton Welfare Board Funds Strained by Present Load, He Says.

The need of federal aid in caring for unemployed persons in Atlanta and Fulton counties was emphasized yesterday by J. Sid Tiller, chairman of the Fulton county welfare board, in commenting upon the report of the executive director, Frank Miller. Miller said the board is unable to handle the hundreds of persons daily being released by the Works Progress Administration.

Tiller, pointing out that the budget of the board is strained already by the 12,000 unemployed it aids, said, "unless the government provides some means of continuing federal aid at the expiration of the WPA in June, thousands of Georgians are going to face actual starvation."

It is impossible for Atlanta and Fulton counties to carry the load without federal assistance, he asserted.

The board chairman has repeatedly called attention to the fact that the aid offered by the government in the social security act is not shared by Georgia because this state has no enabling legislation.

PWA PAYS $1,423,458 ON GEORGIA PROJECTS

Checks totaling $1,423,458 have been paid in Georgia on 80 Public Works Administration projects. Acting State director J. Houston Johnston said yesterday.

Johnston said the checks covered partial payments on contracts for 45 per cent on the project cost made by the government to municipalities which qualified under the PWA program of 1933. The money is paid to the applicants as the work progresses.

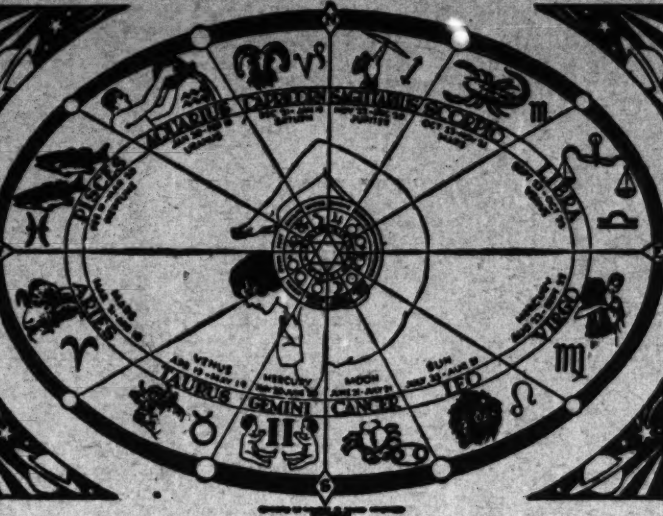

The payments were on projects under construction. There are 158 approved projects in the state. The funds went to 45 school projects, $664,534; 16 waterworks projects, $214,100; five sewer projects, $375,291; seven courthouse and jail projects, $30,139; fire municipal improvement projects, $55,607; and two hospital projects, $16,715.

HOROSCOPE AMELIA EARHART.

A chart set for the birth date of Amelia Earhart shows Aquarius, sign of aviation on the cusp of the 11th house. This is the house of hopes, wishes and ambitions. Four planets in air signs bestow both keen intellectuality and the ability to handle air forces. The sun sextile Mars gives her general good health, vitality, intense enthusiasm. It endows her with courage, activity and enterprise. All well-known qualities of America's leading aviator. The sun sextile Jupiter adds refinement of character, hope, faith, integrity. The sun trine Saturn gives her perseverance, tact and self-control. The sun trine Uranus and well aspected gives originality and sometimes acute genius. It makes her highly intuitive and contributes toward her enterprising spirit. The majority of planets descending on the western side of the chart denotes strong personal magnetism. The moon in Libra gives her a genuine love of art in all its forms. The moon and Jupiter in her sixth house protects her health, especially in traveling. Mercury favorably aspected by Jupiter gives her idealism, romance, a poetic mind and refinement of the spirit. Mars on the cusp of the second house denotes a marked ability to make money, also to spend money. A good aspect of Jupiter and Mars bestows great energy, age, vitality and endurance. The Jupiter and sun aspect indicates that, although Miss Earhart has accomplished much, she will attain even higher honors as life goes on.

PLANETARY INTERPRETATION.
Below are planetary indications, according to the rules of astrology, of which may apply to your forecast. Every day these interesting interpretations will be published, descriptive of the influence of the planets at the time of your birth. Your astrological forecast includes a sun chart and planetary interpretations designated by the numbers on your sun chart. Watch carefully day by day for your numbers.

NUMBER 504—You are very intuitive and receptive and have great recuperative powers. You are a natural healer, a diagnostician. You will be greatly benefited through. Plan to contact neighbors, friends and relatives at this time. You will likely benefit therefrom.

NUMBER 518—The indications are that your greatest handicap is a tendency to worry and fear over things that do not exist. Practice patience and self-control, especially at this time. It would be well for you to keep your mind open to the possibility of a new way of looking at things. Practice concentration. The tendency here is to reason your way through things. You will profit through concentration and agreement. Be careful what you say. Legal action is not always favorable to you.

NUMBER 519—You have many gifts and talents from which to choose your vocation. Among these are: medicine, teaching, literature and art. You have high ambitions and the tendency and ability to work hard. By applying yourself to the vocation chosen, there is no reason why you should not attain recognition, and possibly great success. Do not try to be a jester in all that you do and competent to handle any position with which you may be entrusted. You have excellent organizing and managerial ability. This is one of your best gifts.

NUMBER 412—Your greatest limitation is probably that you try to help others too much. Do not try to be a helper all the time. Give more time and attention to your own problems and things will work out all right.

By this correct line of play, the 1,400-point tally would have been reduced to 500 points and Mr. J. saved from wifely indignation.

CITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO FORREST ADAIR

Prominent Atlanta Man Is Laid To Rest in West View Cemetery.

Prominent Atlantans paid tribute to Forrest Adair, pioneer real estate man and distinguished citizen, at funeral services held at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the Spring Hill Baptist church.

The Rev. J. W. Johnson officiated and burial was in West View cemetery. Pallbearers and an escort of 30 men included many outstanding men in the business, fraternal and professional life of the city.

Mr. Adair, who died early Tuesday morning, was one of the leading real estate operators of the south-east and a guiding spirit in much of the city's development. He was active in civic, fraternal and philanthropic affairs.

Board officers and the offices of members of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, of which Mr. Adair was a long and honorable life member, were closed during the hours of the funeral services.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

"Dar Mr. Culbertson: I have been married for six years, but only during the last eight months have I been able to get my husband to take up contract. For years he objected on the ground that he was a peace-loving man and, as far as bridge went, a conscientious objector. He even intimated that I must be looking for a divorce to suggest such a horrible thing."

Finally I persuaded him to give it a trial. But unfortunately he has turned out to be such a wild bidder, and takes such huge penalties, that I am sorry I ever persuaded him to play.

My question is: What can be done to make him more conservative? Just last night he got me into a 1,400-point penalty by his frightful bidding of the following hand:

Here is how the bidding went:
East South West North
1spade Pass Pass Double
2spades Pass Pass Double
3spades 2diamonds Pass 4diamonds
Pass Pass Double Pass
Pass Pass Double Pass

"The opponents took three spade tricks before I got in and West discarded a heart on the third spade. Then East led a heart up to the dummy. I led the ace, king, and queen of diamonds and continued hearts, knowing that when West ruffed he would have to lead a club, which I then would be able to finesse. (There was, of course, no way for me to get in on my own hand.) West ruffed the third heart and picked up my own and dummy's remaining trump. Then he led the club, all right, but East had the king and ran off two more spade tricks. I went down five tricks doubled, vulnerable."

My husband just laughed, but I was furious. Can't I do something to get him to bid correctly?

"Appealingly yours, ALICE M. J."

Yes, North did overbid, but not that much. Let's see. In the fair placing of blame, I'm afraid we will have to make Mrs. J. accountable for three of the five-trick penalty.

In the first place, East was pretty well marked with the club king from his opening bid. But, in any event, declarer certainly could not afford to lay himself wide open by taking out the master trump. No more than two rounds should have been drawn, and then the ace and jack of clubs should have been led. East would win, he ought to have led another heart. Now it would require just a little thinking to determine the next play. It would be only logical to assume that East's distribution was five spades, four hearts, and four clubs. With two five-card suits, he probably would have shown the other over North's take-out double.

This would place West originally with three hearts and three clubs. Since he discarded a heart, he must have a club led, and that card must be removed! Now let's see. In the third round of clubs, the third heart would force him to ruff and lead away from his jack of trumps to declarer's and dummy's combined tenaces.

By this correct line of play, the 1,400-point penalty would have been reduced to 500 points and Mr. J. saved from wifely indignation.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Tuesday—Last night at St. Paul's School was a very interesting experience. All the boys crowded into the big study hall. Those in front sat decorously at desks or on benches, but towards the back of the hall, students were seated on the tops of desks, radiators or any place they could find to perch themselves.

It is always a challenge to talk to young people, and when they range from 12 to 18 years of age, I confess to being somewhat nervous. However, this group was alive every minute. I talked for half an hour and then they asked me questions. Instead of the usual long pause, in which you wonder if anyone will ever get up the courage to say anything, this group jumped in almost immediately.

One thing struck me forcibly. Several of the boys asked me about the unemployed as though the unemployed were some strange kind of animal. So many people do this. It stirs in me a species of resentment, for we should realize that given a little different turn of fortune's wheel, we ourselves might easily be unemployed.

We seem to forget that the unemployed are individuals, human beings with all the tastes, likes, dislikes and passions we have ourselves. When we meet them as individuals our feeling is entirely different, but as a group we talk about them as though they were so many robots.

I often wonder how we can make the more fortunate in this country fully aware of the fact that the problem of the unemployed is not a mechanical one. It is a problem alive, and throbbing with human pain. Dr. and Mrs. Drury, Mr. and Mrs. John Cutter, my two nephews, Mrs. Scheider and I sat and talked for an hour after we went to Dr. Drury's house. At 7 this morning Dr. Drury knocked at our door and at 7:45 we sat down to a very delicious breakfast. Dr. Drury, Mr. Cutter and Danny went off to chapel at 8:15, and Henry and Mrs. Cutter saw us off.

We saw more of the trouble brought about by the floods this morning and had to take a long detour again because of a bridge being out. However, we reached my friend, Miss Read, at Westbrook, Conn., at 2:15 and it was nice to have a little chat with her before proceeding to New Haven.

NANCY PAGE

May Day Is Child's Health Day in the United States.

By FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Peter and Joan went to bed on the thirtieth of April chanting that bit of verse, "If you're waking, call me early, and then Peter added, "Call me early, Mother dear." They had great plans. They had made a list of friends at whose homes they wished to deliver a May basket. Their tulips were in their prime. By picking these the night before and letting them stand, almost submerged in a pail of water, they would be fresh and ready to stand up after they had been packed in the small baskets that were to be hung from door latches or door knobs. This custom of hanging May baskets was an old one that Peter's father had followed when he was a boy in London.

He liked to have his niece and son follow the tradition. So he never dreamed when his best tulips were cut. Nancy was glad to see the enthusiasm which the family had for May Day. They were up early, busy until twilight. They had a romp out of doors and then ended the day with a plea for a long story.

May Day has become the special day for children. It is on that day that American mothers take stock of their children. They check on their health. They check on the food they are eating. They realize that the children's character of right is a fine statement of their hopes. Perhaps the greatest need of the child of today is that of security. The many children have heard the grown-ups worrying audibly over the insecurity of wages, jobs, incomes during the depression. The adults' worries have been engrained deeply on the child's mind and the result that he imagines terrors that grown-ups have never even dreamed of. A child ought to be adequately fed, adequately clothed, he ought to be loved, he ought to be trained in habits that will make life easier for him when he grows older. All of these things need checking and reckoning on the one day of the year that belongs to children—May Day.

The Mimosa Garden Club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Richard Johnston, on Wesley avenue, with the president, Mrs. Blewett Lee, in the chair. Widowed and Maimed in Tornado, Mother Clings to One Living Babe
A pitifully battered mother, maimed for life in the Gainesville tornado, clung yesterday to one of the few things left her by the destructive wind.

Little by little, Mrs. Dorothy Tumlin, 38-year-old mill worker, is learning how the maddened elements changed her world.

She was unconscious for a week after the storm struck. Doctors amputated her right leg in a battle against the infant near her.

A few days later, she learned the factory where she worked was blown away and that her own home was a shambles. Not until yesterday did she learn her husband and two other children were among the 205 victims of the twister.

When they brought her gurgling, smiling daughter, the suffering mother forgot her troubles.

"God bless it, God bless it—" she cried over and over again as nurses held the infant near her.

The baby, Frances, has been a waif for the storm for more than a week. Taken to another hospital in the confusion attending the finding of victims and the rushing of them here for medical attention, it required a week to establish the little blonde's identity.

During the week, more than 100 homes—many of them luxurious—were offered by kindly persons to the baby.

Mrs. Tumlin, although aware of her plight, was quite emphatic about adoption.

"I wouldn't think of it," she said, "I know now that the storm made me a widow and injured me so I probably can never work again, but I'm going to keep my baby. That's God's will."

When she recovers, she plans to go to the home of her father in Gainesville. The baby is being kept there. Meanwhile, Mrs. Tumlin is being cared for generously by the Red Cross.

"Give my baby up?" she mused, as a few scattered offers of adoption came. "I should say not. It may mean poverty for both of us if I keep her, but she's mine and it's God's will for a mother to have her own daughter."

Number of Night Auto Fatalities Far in Excess of Daylight Toll

Motorists and Pedestrians Alike Blamed for Dark Driving Condition.

During the normal hours of daylight last year, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m., according to statistics of the Travelers Insurance Company, there were 14,620 persons killed in automobile accidents, while in the normal hours of darkness, from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m., there were 21,480 deaths. This record raises the question, "Shouldn't drivers and pedestrians be afraid of the dark?"

The exceedingly high rate of death per accident for the normal hours of darkness puts the spotlight on the conditions and conduct of drivers and pedestrians responsible for such a record of fatalities after sundown. At night drivers can't easily avoid what the infant near her.

And it is something for all drivers who have any regard for human life to remember, also, in the opinion of The Constitution Safety Council. As darkness approaches, a driver's vision naturally becomes more limited. Emergent situations slip up on him more quickly. And after a day's work a motorist's reactions are likely to be slower.

All of which means that extra precaution must be exercised when driving at night.

Here is a good motto for drivers: "As the sun goes down, cut your speed down."

Drivers who have signed the safe driving pledge of The Constitution Safety Council are known throughout the state by now as sane and careful drivers. These are the motorists who have come to realize that safety in driving is as necessary to life as food. Recklessness snuffs out more lives than undernutrition.

Two pledge signer stickers will be sent you in return for your signed safe driving pledge. Place these on the front and rear windows of your car to remind yourself and other motorists and pedestrians that safety has no substitute in the war against death on the streets and highways of the state.

Safe Driving Pledge
In the interest of accident prevention and safer conditions on the highways and in co-operation with the Safety Council of The Atlanta Constitution, I am making the following pledge:

1. To drive at moderate speed and on own side of road.
2. Not to pass cars on curves or hills.
3. To stop at stop signs.
4. Not to jump traffic lights.

5. In city traffic to be particularly watchful for pedestrians stepping into the line of traffic from parked cars.
6. Always to give hand signals showing my intention of turning to the left, to the right, or stopping, and not to leave the curb from a parked position without giving a signal.

7. To be fair to other drivers in all respects and to refrain from reckless driving.

The Safety Council of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
Fill out and mail this pledge to the Safety Council of The Atlanta Constitution, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of windshield stickers.

DEATH SUSPECT ELUDE CAPTURE BY OFFICER

Search for Harry P. Howe, of Atlanta, sought in connection with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Hattie Howe, whose body was found early Sunday morning near Dallas, Ga., continued yesterday.

No new developments marked the hunt and no clues to Howe's whereabouts have been found, it was revealed by Atlanta and Fulton county police.

and the sheriff's office in Faulkner county, all of whom are working on the case.

Police tested their chief hopes of finding Howie late Sunday afternoon when they took him into custody on the fact that he told his son, James, that he would communicate with him "within 30 to 30 days."

This statement was made to the sheriff's office by James Howie late Sunday afternoon when he was taken into custody, according to testimony given by the son at a coroner's inquest last night.

James Howie was charged with murdering his father, Howard, last Sunday.

MAN IS ARRESTED

SON 'NUMBERS' CHARGE

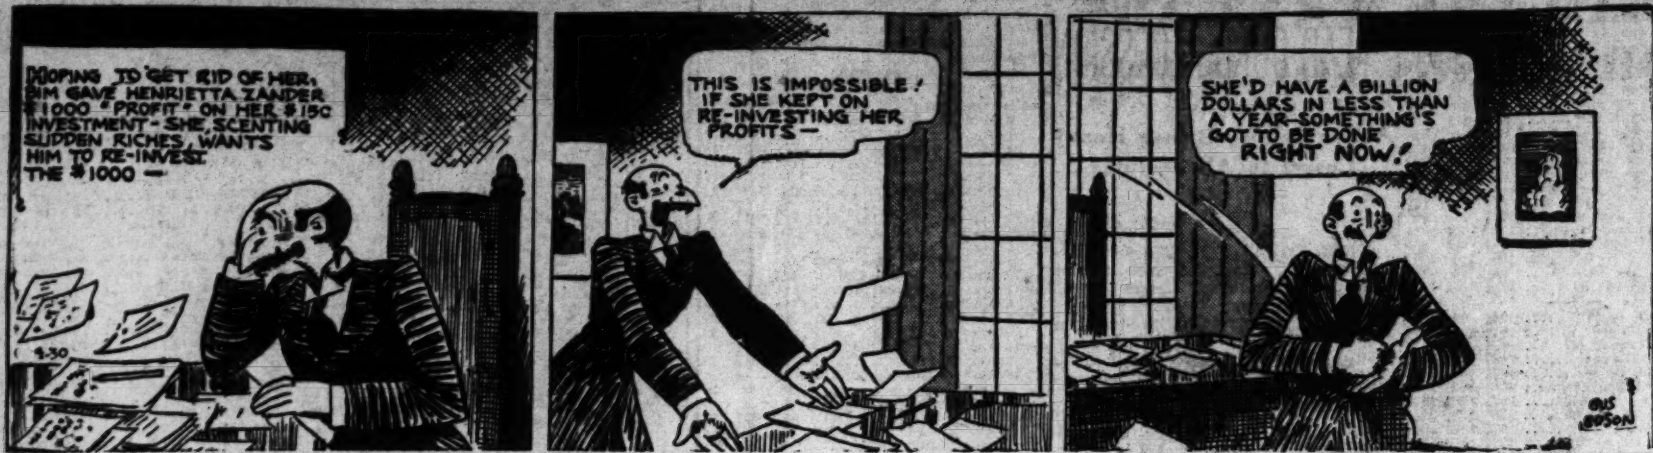

The lottery books and "bug" tickets were found in a room at the downtown office building where James Howie was arrested by Detectives I. E. Jones and J. H. Rauchenberg to arrest Mr. W. M. Aggett, 34, who gave a Lakewood address.

the woman was released under $100,000 bail on charges of disorderly conduct in the lottery and will be given a hearing at 10:30 o'clock this morning in Judge's court.

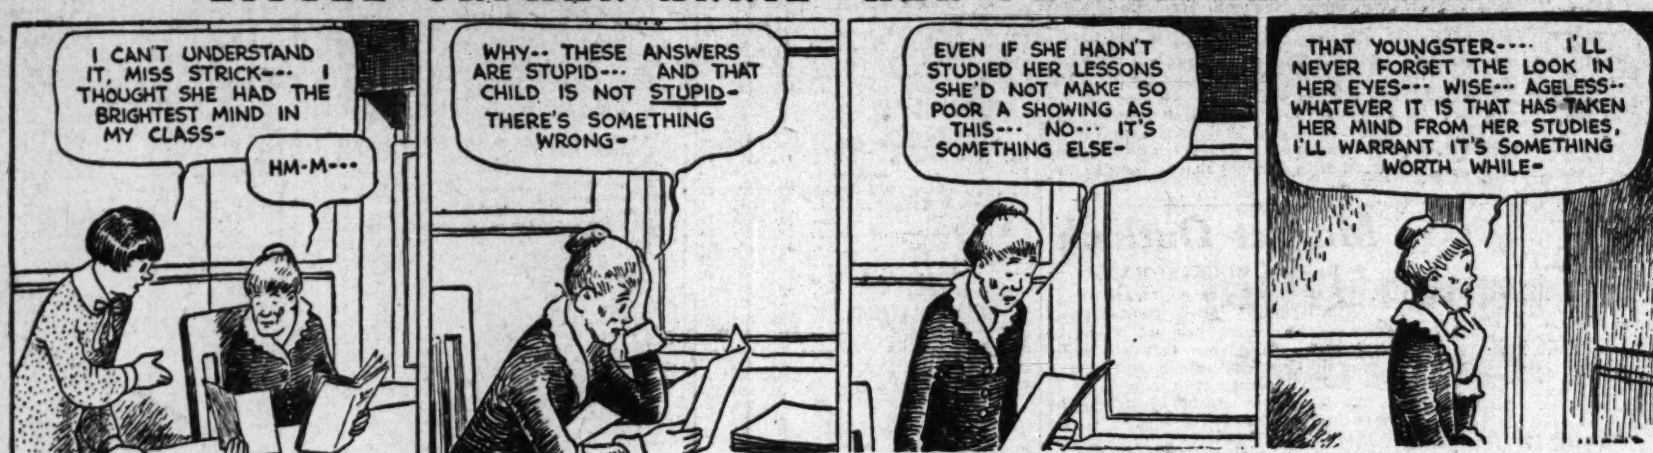

Most of the tickets found in the car were played on "lead numbers," according to the detectives. In this type of play, the sleuths explained, "bug" devotees place at least 30 single number which he thinks will lead to the three-digit number. This usually constitutes the day's "lead."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Val Clark, who soon is to marry Robert, young New England lawyer, goes to New York from New Manchester on a shopping trip with Mrs. Warren, but Aunt Mahalia's housekeeper, Val's cousin, Kate Hollister, editor of a fashion magazine, asks her to a party where she meets Hugh Malcom, successful young playwright; Best Galishaw, a New Manchester boy who while doing newspaper work in New York writes a best seller; Leslie Crawford, a half-brother, and Winifred Sperry, who are starting in Hugh's "Red of Iron," and Guy Williams, who inherited millions and has a small part in the play. Best was engaged to Kate but married wealthy Evelyn Gardfield. There is hard feeling between Best and Leslie over an inheritance and Leslie remains Hugh's attention to Winifred. Guy asks Val to go to Pete's place, which she thinks is near by. At Pete Galishaw's, outside Philadelphia, Guy is greeted with kisses by Louise Cameron—"Les to you," Guy says to his introduction. Les says Guy off to dance, leaving Val with Crawford. Scott. When they meet later in the dining room Les strikes Val who defends herself so well Guy has to carry Les from the room. While waiting for Guy, Les takes Val to Pete's gaming room. They both and Cran drive her back to Pete's place. Val goes with Guy to see Hugh's play. In a storm scene Les is supposed to drop in terror to the floor of a mountain shack but Val is certain he has in any way been killed. NEW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XI

He caught her arm, laughing, and pulled her toward the hall door. "Nonsense," he said. "If you're needed, we'll send for you; but I don't want you mixed up in this if I can be prevented. Hurry, get your things and let's go..." What I came to talk about is entirely foreign to—to what we've talked about. I asked you a question yesterday and before you could answer we were interrupted. But we'll talk about it in the car."

Sitting low under the steering wheel—Mrs. Warren was in the rumble seat—Hugh said: "If you recall, Val, I asked you yesterday if you could be persuaded to take an easy job at a good salary. I didn't explain why I was anxious to keep you in New York for the winter and I know that I can make it quite clear now, but once in a blue moon, Val, a playwright gets an inspiration. Sometimes it is a situation; more often it is a character. In either case the idea hits him between the eyes and from that moment on he's a miserable man until he has built his idea into a play..." After I had gone home from Kate's party night before last, I couldn't get out of my thoughts. I couldn't understand it at first because—well, I didn't get it; it's all. And then—

Val said, grinning, "Don't tell me I gave you an inspiration for a play, Hugh."

"You did, though," he said soberly. "At least you gave me an idea for a character. Once I had that, the plot grew of itself."

Val's tinkle of laughter brought his eyes slanting downward. "It's too funny, Hugh—my inspiring anything at all!" But she was tremendously pleased.

"But to get to the point," Hugh said, "I can go beyond the sketchy first draft I've done until I am so familiar with my central character that I will know precisely how to handle her in any situation. That may seem absurd to you, but it is the way I work."

Eyes twinkling with amusement, Val said, "And so—?"

"And so," said Hugh, "I am offering you a job for six months at an excellent salary—the only requirement being that you give me your evenings. The hard work you'd have to do would be to sit through an occasional rehearsal or play solitaire while I punished a typewriter."

Val leaned forward, looked up into his face. "Hugh—you can't be serious about this?"

"One thing more," he said, as if he had not heard her question. "It would be simple business arrangement and no nonsense. You may assure your very nice young man that contract would specifically rule out all sentiment. At the end of six months our arrangement would terminate and you would be free to go your way."

As ridiculous as it all seemed to her, Val knew now that he was entirely serious. She said after a little silence, "I can't tell you how flattered I am, Hugh—how much the idea appeals to me. Unfortunately—"

"The nice young man would object. I was afraid of that."

"Perhaps," said Val, "the nice young man would be within his rights. We're to be married next month, Hugh..."

She saw the lump of muscle rise in his jaw. "So that's how it is," he said.

They said good-bye at the gate. Looking up at him Val thought, "Funny, but I didn't really know you until an hour ago. Now I feel as if we've old friends and that I'm doing you a filthy trick running off like this. But nothing could be done about it, so she gave him her hand, smiling. "Another inspiration will come along presently," she told him. And then as she turned to follow Mrs. Warren through the gate, "Write me if you need me—to back up your story."

"I won't need you," he called after her. "Forget it as quickly as you can and give me my congratulations to a very lucky young man."

Hugh drove directly to police headquarters. "I am Hugh Malcom," he said to the thin, bald-headed man behind the desk in the detective bureau. "I understand I'm wanted."

The detective leaned forward. "We wanted to ask you about a note we found in Mr. Crawford's dressing room at the theater—a note threatening to kill him if he didn't play after the first act and refuse to go on with the show. Know anything about it?"

"He told me himself he had received such a note," Hugh said, quietly. "I didn't see it."

The detective's bushy brows lifted. "You didn't write it, Mr. Malcom?"

Hugh smiled. "No, I didn't write it."

"It was written on your typewriter. There it is on the table behind me. We're holding it as evidence."

Hugh twisted around and looked at the familiar machine. "I suppose that means I'll have to get a new typewriter," he said.

The man's small eyes glistened. "The chances are you won't be needing a typewriter for some time to come, Mr. Malcom."

"If you don't mind," Hugh said, reaching for the telephone, "I'll ask Walter Kellogg, the district attorney, to verify that."

A shrug was the man's only answer. "I would never forget that train ride back to New Manchester. In those three hours she relived every moment of her incredible adventure in New York and again and again she seemed questioning the reality of it all."

Something had happened to her in that three-day absence from New Manchester. At moments she had suspected it before. Now she knew it as certainly as if it had been some tangible change, some physical alteration.

Would she, she wondered, find it difficult to readjust herself to New Manchester, to life at Aunt Mahalia's? She had no choice, of course. The New York interlude had been an interlude and no more.

And so out of a haze of open-eyed dreaming she came back to her old surroundings with a feeling that circumstances had conspired to cheat her of something she had only this moment discovered she wanted very much.

And, curiously enough, as she stood in the vestibule of the coach waiting for the door to be opened and reached back in memory for one last contact with that little group she had left behind, it was the alternately gay and sober face of Cranford Scott that rushed to the fore of her consciousness.

Robert's slanting blue eyes abruptly underwent a ludicrous change of expression when they perceived the discolored eye and the indelible marks on Val's cheeks left by the beautifully manicured nails of Lesae Cameron.

"Val—what happened to you...?" He took the hand she offered, dutifully touched his lips to hers, but it was apparent that a carefully rehearsed greeting had been completely forgotten in the discovery of Val's damaged face.

WAYS OF AFRICAN LIONS.

IV—A Narrow Escape.

Fourteen years ago, James L. Clark, widely-known big-game hunter, made a journey through the Great Crater region of east-central Africa. With him went his wife, a party of native baggage-carriers, and a hunter known as "Captain Hurst."

The explorers passed through open glades and dense bushes. One day they paused in an open space to rest and to enjoy their midday meal. At one side Clark noticed an opening between trees, and went to see where it led. He came to some bushes and pushed through them, when suddenly he reached the edge of a precipice and almost fell over it!

"Folks didn't throw away anything in the old days. They always figured the girls might need it when they got married."

adventure with a lion which seldom has been so close to excitement. He was some distance away from the others when he came upon a lion. Raising his double-barreled gun, he fired, but missed. The lion leapt to his feet, and the hunter fired again, and this time struck the beast.

The wounded lion turned and rushed toward Hurst, who wanted to reload his gun but did not have time. On came the beast, with open jaws, ready to make an end to the man who had fired the shots.

Perhaps he did not have time to think of what he was doing, but he is told that Hurst "thrust the nozzle of his gun into the lion's mouth." The animal was charging fast, and by the force of the charge the man was hurled backward to the ground.

In describing the rest of the adventure, Clark relates:

"The rifle stock snapped in two, the lion stood above Hurst for a while. Then it stopped, seized him by the hip in its teeth, and started off with him. It took two of three steps, dropped him to the ground, coughed and fell dead directly beside the hunter."

Hurst was hurt, but not fatally. Later it was found that the bullet which had struck the lion had reached a vital spot but had left a little life in the beast—almost enough to end the hunter's career!

Never in the history of Atlanta have its residents so eagerly grasped the opportunity to own a summer place of their own. Response to the announcement of PINE LAKE last season was amazing—hundreds of lots were quickly purchased by people who had been waiting for just such an opportunity! Building of cottages was started immediately and before the end of last summer PINE LAKE was a permanently established summer colony. Many other hundreds expressed a desire for sites across the lake, and because of the enormous demand for shady lots at PINE LAKE we have bought additional land, and now offer a limited number of lots in SECTION TWO—ACROSS THE LAKE.

Some of the most beautiful and convenient summer home sites in Pine Lake are contained in the new plat. Every lot faces a good road—every lot is beautifully wooded—pines, oaks, and poplars.

The opportunity to have your own summer place in this wonder vacationland, right at Atlanta's door, again is yours! But remember, you must act quickly. The number of lots is limited and demand is constantly increasing.

DEATH MOTIVE REVEALED.
CENTER, Texas, April 29.—(P)—An admission that Mollie Childs, 35, an invalid, was slain in a plot to obtain his $30,000 estate, was announced tonight by Texas Rangers after the arrest of Childs' pretty wife and Terrence Bramlett, 21. Ranger Captain R. H. McCormick said that Bramlett admitted the motive in a lengthy statement.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE.
SHREVEPORT, La., April 29.—(P)—While police were taking down a report of her threat to end her life, La Verne Miller leaped to her death from the Texas Street bridge into Red river this afternoon. Police said Miss Miller, a short time prior to her fatal leap, had attempted to jump off the old traffic bridge.

INCREASE IN DETAIL IS BACKED BY McLEAN

Lieutenant in Charge of Motorcycle Officers Cites Benefits of Hike.

Lieutenant Reggie H. McLean, commanding the police motorcycle detail, said last night he "is exceedingly hopeful that city council will act favorably at its next meeting on a resolution to be offered by Councilman Max Cuba, of the second ward, increasing personnel of the motorcycle squad from 25 to 40 members."

"Ratification of Councilman Cuba's suggestion, in my opinion," he said, "would constitute a major forward step in coping with local traffic situation."

The lieutenant pointed out that "of the 25 men assigned to motorcycle duty two are required for duty as investigators in the captain's office, tracing hit and run drivers and conducting various other traffic investigations, while a third man is permanently assigned to Candler field. That leaves us but 22 men for actual patrol duty and they are divided into two shifts, one working from 7 a. m. until 3 p. m. and the other from 3 p. m. until 11 p. m."

"Of the 22 men we do have constantly in the field it is often necessary for a number of them to handle traffic at baseball games and other events, not to mention the many times they are called upon to furnish motorcycle escorts for funerals, parades, sightseeing trips, etc." Lieutenant McLean continued. "Given the 15 additional men we would be able to cover all school crossing twice a day as we are now helping to do, attend to the various other tasks delegated to the squad and conduct a constant and more intensive drive against speeders and reckless drivers. With the present limited number we simply cannot patrol major thoroughfares as they should be patrolled because the districts to which men are assigned are of necessity too large for very close supervision."

Since his assignment to command of the squad March 1, 1934, the 25 men under Lieutenant McLean have arrested 16,636 traffic violators, who paid fines totaling $137,063.

COLLEGE STUDENTS
KIDNAP ACTRESS

Scantly Clad Comedienne
Freed When Boys Lose Nerve.

EDINBURGH, April 29.—(P)—Fifteen Edinburgh University students have confessed to the "kidnaping" of Renee Houston, well-known comedienne, principal Sir Thomas Holland informed the actress' husband, Mr. Aherne, tonight.

Miss Houston was abducted from the Empire theater last night by a group of students. She was carried away, scantily clad, in a motorcar, while two young men appeared before the theater manager demanding 25 pounds ($125) ransom for "charity."

But the kidnappers apparently lost their nerve, for the actress was let out of the automobile and picked up by passersby, who assisted her home. Miss Houston, although suffering a sprained ankle and bruised, joined today in a plea for leniency. The matter is in the hands of police.

TOSCANINI DIRECTS
FINAL U. S. CONCERT

NEW YORK, April 29.—(P)—The standing room line began forming at 7 o'clock this morning at Carnegie hall, where Arturo Toscanini gave his farewell concert in the United States tonight after leading the Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra for 11 seasons.

Those in line sat on camp stools and boxes. Some brought lunch, waiting for the 150 $1.50 tickets which did not go on sale until 8:15 p. m. The queue that stretched down 75th street were women and messenger boys, paid by others to hold places.

Sets, at $10 downstairs and boxes at $25, were sold out two days after they went on sale weeks ago.

Toscanini's regular season with the Philharmonic ended Sunday, and tonight's concert was a special benefit.

KARPIS BELIEVED SEEN IN CAMBRIDGE, N. Y.

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 29.—(UP)—Police Chief Victor Fisher said tonight he had not been advised of reports that a man believed by a Cambridge, N. Y., gasoline station attendant to be Alvin Karpis, Public Enemy No. 1, was en route here by automobile.

According to the attendant, the man gave the name of "Harry Loisy" and was carrying a suitcase.

Fisher said there was no "Harry Loisy" listed in the local city directory.

DAILY SHORT STORY BROKEN IDYLL

This Was Too Perfect a Picture of Young Love Dreaming—Too Fragile to Last for Long.

By GERMAN KASTNER.

Somewhere in this world there is a through mossy glens and brooding trees.

Once their hands touched. Time shambled on, in that leisurely way it has.

Another August evening arrived on the scene. You may be sure that the moon glowed with special brilliance.

She was wearing a flowered gingham dress. Her brown hair rebelled against the caress of the breeze. Her eyes were directed to a distance, but they saw nothing.

A ribbon crossed her head. Sentimental old folks would have called it a halo. A ribbon does strange things to some men.

They were sitting on the river bank, idly pulling tufts of grass, as people will. He kissed her, as people do.

"I love you," she said. He was silent.

"I want you to stay here with me," she continued. "You can be happy here, in these surroundings you must have learned to love—these wonderful weeks."

"I'll give you peace," she pleaded. "I'll take care of you. The world will never batter at you or twist you in its hands again. Will you stay?"

"There are places and things I have never known. I am young—too young."

He talked, he looked toward a ripple in the stream. He didn't see the ripple.

"Don't you love me?" she asked. "I love you," he replied, "means many things."

"Is there someone else?" she cried. "Don't you care for me—think of me? Am I nothing to you? No more pleasing than the sunset or a pretty picture?"

"Think of you?" he repeated, contemplating. "I think of you always, when you crown, the way you smile, the way you wipe flour onto your apron, or look out of the window, but I never when the wind plays with your hair, and you look like a little girl—"

He stopped.

"Don't you see?" she demanded. "You want to stay. You must stay!"

She touched his cheek. A fugitive strand of hair floated across his vision. "If I stayed, I might hurt you some day. I have hurt people before. I never want to hurt you. I am happy when you smile and laugh."

"It is better that I go. That will be a small hurt. If I stayed, a greater hurt would come."

"I don't care," she said. "I'll chance that." He stood up, aiding her with his hands. They walked back without words. They were very close.

He left in the morning. The farewell took place at the sagging white gate.

It was fitting that she should wear the hair ribbon and the flour-bleached apron.

A bee had stung her and there was a red mark on her bare brown leg. Her last sight of him was as a receding figure walking slowly up a rise. His coat seemed somewhat shabbier than she recalled it at first sight.

She probably cried. Perhaps some day Jeremy will come back and look down upon that same valley. Perhaps their story will have its proper ending.

Perhaps.

PARKER IS CONVICTED IN PHILLIPS SLAYING

THOMASVILLE, Ga., April 29.—(P)—Roy Parker was convicted tonight of the murder of Sam Phillips, a tenant farmer in whose death the widow also was indicted, and a sentence of life imprisonment recommended by the jury.

The defendant, slumped in his chair, showed no emotion as the verdict was returned. The jury deliberated two hours. Judge W. E. Thomas ordered that verdict recorded in the court records.

Parker denied the slaying in a statement to the jury. Earlier a state's witness testified that Parker once offered $10 to get Phillips "out of the way."

Mrs. Sam Phillips, widow of the slain man, said Phillips and Parker left the house together at 8 p. m. the night of November 21, and that Parker later returned to the house for a pillow.

It is not known when Mrs. Phillips will be placed on trial.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN RAID ON DOWNTOWN HOTEL

Four Men Held by Fulton County Police; Another
Nabbed at Capitol.

A quantity of liquor was seized and four men were arrested at about 8 o'clock last night when Fulton county police made a raid at the Exchange hotel, at Broad and Marietta streets.

One of the men, listed as Joe Thomas, 30, was arrested in the lobby with a package containing 12 pints of the whiskey according to police.

The other liquor, 27 pints and 30 half pints of rye, and five pints of gin, were found in a room on the second floor, said by police to be used as a store room.

Charles LaCounte, 22, manager, who was arrested at the desk in the lobby, denied knowledge of the liquor in the room. He told police he "rented the room and that's all I knew about it."

Otis Whitfield, 25, and J. T. Sturman, 34, were taken into custody in a room on the second floor. Sturman claimed ownership of the liquor, according to Patrolmen Burton Carroll, Woodrow Wilson, John Carter and Marvin Riley, who made the raid.

All those arrested were charged with violating the state prohibition laws. LaCounte and Whitfield were released under $300 bond; Sturman, under $500 bond, and Joe Thomas, under suspended sentence on a previous liquor charge.

As the patrolmen were cruising in their police car shortly after the raid, a man who gave his name as Raymond Brown, 21, was arrested when he stepped from his automobile at the Washington street side of the state capitol, allegedly with a package containing six pints of whiskey.

He was released under $200 bond.
